Democratic Rule.

Honored the man who amearthed the graft. I am proud to belong to such a party."

He sketched the corruption which had been prewhent during the administration of the State government by the Republicans, alluding to the trouble with the Kendall Bank Note Company; with S. Brown Allen, then the Auditor of Public Accounts; the failure of the Petersburg Bank, and other matters avidencing crookedness or incompency. Democrats sent to the penitentiary one of the officials guilty of grafting, and honored the man who found it out; Republicans tried to hush the whole matter up. "Wo are always a little harder on a Democrat who grafts," he said, "than we are on a Republican. The Democrat ought to know better,"

"The Republicans are denouncing the multiple school book list and the high prices parents have to pay for school books," said Mr. Swanson at one point, and then he showed that the last boo't list adopted by the Republicans, had a far greater number of books on their it than the Democrats have on the list adopted a few years ago, and that the average cost of she books to-day is nourly fifty per cent, less than under Republican rule, and this, despite the Republican policy of protection, which anys a tax on nearly everything which enters into/the making of books."

Corruption and Graft.

Corruption and Graft.

Mr. Perkins alluded to the testimony of George W. Perkins, of the New York Life, that his company had given $150,000 % cleet Roosevelt. The speaker made this a text for denunciatra of the system of corruption and graft. "Judge Lewis is going through this State talking of Democratic graft and asking in dulect tones for your votes. He says something like this: "I don't know much about you and how much you can tote, but I know I love you mighty well, and I surely want your vote."

Mr. Perkins, commending Senator Martin to the people, said he had know him all his life. He didn't believe there had ever been a man in the Senate from Virginia, who so abis and sever been the commonwealth. He was a bed writered at the very had the presented the Commonwealth. He from Virginia, who so addy and so well represented the Commonwealth. He said he had rejoiced at the nomination of Mr. Sawnson, not because of hostility to the other gentlemen who sought the nomination, but because if there ever was a Democrat in Virginia, it was Claude Swanson.

Ovation to Swanson.

Claude Swanson.

Claude Swanson.

Senator Chapman then presented Mr. Swanson, who received great applause as he came forward. Swanson got the ear of the crowd from the first by several pretty compliments paid the ladies, and some humorous allusions to the influence wielded by them in politics.

Mr. Swanson introduced a number of anecdotes into his speech, nearly overyone a new one, and they took exceedingly well. There were a number of Republicans in the audience, and to these Mr. Swanson said he never used abuse as argument. "When this meeting is over," said Mr. Swanson, "I want all the Republican converts to come forward and give me their hands."

Republicans last year when we had a national campaign, he said, had persisted in discussing State issues, the new Constitution, and so on, and this year in a State campaign they evaded State issues and other national issues. He then proceeded to discuss issues and to contrast the records of the two parties in Virginia. Speaking along the lines followed in his speech at Hanover Courthetise, Mr. Swanson evoked laughter and tybiause when he said aff the admiration which Judge Lewis and other Republican speakers manifested for Northern Republicans seemed to be woefully one-sided. For nine years the Republican party had been in absolute control at Washington, and been glevn a Cabinet appointment, and no Virginian had been appointment, and no Virginian had been appointment to know their Southern brethren pretty well," said Mr. Swanson, "and yet Judge Lewis asks that you turn over to the Republicans the control of the Virginia State government."

Mr. Swanson spoke of the great strides being made by the South under Demorat rule. He cited the recent experience of Maryland, North Carolina and Kentucky with Republicanism, and showed how, under Republican administration, society and business had suffered to such an extent that the people had risen in their power and restored the Democrats to power.

their power and restored the Democrats to power.

"Judge Lewis talks about graft in our Virginia government," exclaimed Mr. Swanson, "and asks us to turn it over to our clean hands." He then sketched the recent history of the corruption in the national government in a way that claimed the closest attention of the audlence. "Judge Lewis charges that the educational system is corrupt because a man named McGlivray osld to the teachers for 70 cents a school register, while cost only 17 cents," he said "McGlivray was driven from place and then what did the Democrats do?" They nominated the office of State Superintendent of Public Instruction to J. D. Ergleston, the man who discovered McGlivray's crookednes, Honored the man who unearthed the partty."

"We are spending twice as much for schools as was spent by the Republicans," said Mr. Swanson in another place. "And we will soon have almounths' schools, for we have, under our new constitution, put additional taxition in the railroads and transportation lines generally and this revenue is to be devoted to longer school terms." Fine Schools.

The Democratic party had established a normal school for girls; it has made the Polytechnic Institute great; it had made the Department of Agriculture invaluable to the farmer; it had established to the farmer; it had established department of labor for the workingman; it has procided for the care of the insanc; it had created a liberal system of pensions for the old Confederate soldiers and it had reduced taxation.

"Thank God that in this day when

"Thank God that in this day when every man' is so prone to yield to the love of money and the fear of corporations, the Democratic party of Virginia has had the courage to put its hand on the wealth and make it bear its just share of the burdens of government, and to make the railroads and corporations pay a fair portion of taxes."

Referring to the plank in the Republican platform, which declared for free school books, Mr. Swanson said the Republicans were absolutely ignorant that the Democratis years ago had passed a law providing that every child in the Commonwealth unable to purchase books should be entitled to receive them free of all cost.

Mr. Swanson concluded with an eloquent tribute to Virginia, the Virginia of to-day and a future. To initiate Republican rule in Virginia now would be to turn back the tide of progress and to change the prosperity of Democratic rule to the disorder and corruption which has always attended. Republican adminhas always attended Republican admin-istration of the affairs of Southern He was greatly appluded as he

Our Tom.

Our Tom.

There were loud cries of "Our Tom" as Senator Martin came forward, at the conclusion of Mr. Swanson's speech.

After wulding for the applause to cease, Senator Martin expressed his regret that he could not make an extended address, as the hour was late and he had to drive the entire distance to Charlottes-ville to eatch the six o'clock train for Washington, where he had to meet a number of Viridinan's to-morrow. He spoke a few minutes. "Democratic success in Virginia is assured," he said. "We will certainly win in Noymber. The purification of the Republican party in Virginia by the Democratic destroyed it, Its purification meant its annihilation."

This caused much laughter and applause:

This caused much laughter and applause.
"If John Chapman and Nat Early find they need me at any future time during the campaign, they have but to send for me." More applause followed this remark.
"But they won't need me. The people of Greene are going to give them ach a big majority. And Claude Swanson and the rest of the ticket will have from thirty to forty thousand majority in the State."

This conclusion in the form of a prophecy caused a round of cheers.

J. P. Runyon, president of the Arkansus State Board of Health, has sent the following reply to Dr. White, of New Orleans, in response to the query as to whether President Roosevelt and party would be permitted to enter Arkansus from New Orleans inte in October, according to his official plans: "Impracticable to answer satisfactorily until about the first proxime."

Dr. Runyon said that so far in advance and not knowing what the yellow fever conditions may be at that time, he does not feel justified in giving a definite answer as to admitting even the President of the "nited States through quarantine lines that are being so zealously guarded.

There is no material change in the country situation except at Patterson, where the shortage of funds has necessitated a general reorganization of the empaign. After consultation with inflovernor, he has decided to allow a fixed sum for weekly expenses, and the campaign will be placed entirely in the hands of a local committee. Dr. C. L. for the House.

Manchester Bureau, Times-Dispatch, l No. 1102 Hull Street. Mr. Cornellus Wells, one of the most prominent Republicans of the city, may be a candidate for the House of Delegates from this periot against Mir. Willis C. Pulliam, the Democratic nomines for the position. A conference of the lending Republicans of Manchester, held last week, took up the question of nutting a man in the field against the Democrats for the seat in the lower branch of the Legislature, and Mr. Wells was the choice.

It is known that he has been urged to announce his candidacy by a number of the leading men of his party in Manchester and Chesterfield. Mr. Wells some time ago expressed the opinion that the convention or any of the Republicans of the city.

In the past the Republicans have not put up a candidate against the Democratic nomince for the position, but at this time it is said that such a man as Mr. Wells would make a good fight for his party. Powhatan county is conceded to be Republican by a small majority and there are many who believe that Chesterfield county is about evenly divided between the Democrats and the Republicans. Manchester is, and has been, the place where the question was settled and the majority that Mr. Pulliam receives here will be his safeguard. ceives here will be his safeguard.
